Category	Live Music in Rotterdam

Description

Dutch singer-songwriter Marike Jager comes to Kantine Walhalla for a special release concert celebrating her new EP The Girl Who Turned into a Bed.

During the evening, Jager takes the audience behind the music, sharing how the songs came together and how the strange, imaginative world of filmmaker Tim Burton influenced the project. A handmade wooden music box also plays an important role in the new material, alongside her familiar guitar-led songwriting.

Jager performs the new songs solo, together with favourites from earlier in her career. After the concert, copies of the new EP will be available on vinyl and CD, with an opportunity to have them signed.

Jager won the Grote Prijs van Nederland and has received four Edison nominations. Her music draws inspiration from artists including Fiona Apple and The Beatles, combining playful rhythms, melodic songwriting and a slightly theatrical streak.
