When	Thu, 25. March 2027, 20:30 h
Category	Live Music in Rotterdam

Description

Belgian indie pop trio BLUAI return to Rotterdam on Thursday 25 March 2027 for a concert at Rotown. Following the release of their acclaimed second album, The Way You Talk Reminds Me of Home, the Antwerp band bring their warm blend of indie folk, alternative pop and heartfelt songwriting to the stage.

BLUAI began as a bedroom project by singer and guitarist Catherine Smet before developing into a trio with bassist Caitlin Talbut and drummer Mo Govaerts. Their breakthrough came in 2022, when they won three major Belgian music competitions in the same year: Humo's Rock Rally, De Nieuwe Lichting and Sound Track.

Since then, the band have performed at festivals including Rock Werchter, Pukkelpop, Cactus Festival and Lowlands, gradually building an international following with their intimate melodies and emotionally honest lyrics.

A new chapter with The Way You Talk Reminds Me of Home

Released on 30 October 2026 through Unday Records, BLUAI's second album follows their impressive 2024 debut, Save It For Later. Recorded live over five days at London's RAK Studios with producer Isabel Gracefield, the record captures the band's natural musical chemistry while exploring themes of growing older, relationships, uncertainty and belonging.

Songs such as Make A Living, It's Gotta Be Me and Car Crash combine gentle folk influences with infectious indie pop melodies. Beneath the warm arrangements lie personal stories about friendship, heartbreak and the complicated feelings associated with finding your place in the world.

Fans of Big Thief, Pinegrove and HAIM should find plenty to enjoy when BLUAI bring their evolving sound to Rotown's intimate stage.
