Description

Prog-rock legends revisit their catalogue

Singer-flautist Ian Anderson and Jethro Tull remain one of progressive rock's most influential bands. Since their 1968 debut This Was, they have combined rock, folk and classical influences to create an unmistakeable sound.
For this tour, Anderson and his regular band—David Goodier (bass), John O'Hara (keyboards), Scott Hammond (drums/accordion) and Jack Clark (guitar)—delve into the entire Tull catalogue, from 1960s classics to songs from their 2025 album Curious Ruminant.
Specially compiled video projections support the music, making the show a treat for fans of Emerson, Lake & Palmer, Wishbone Ash and Frank Zappa.
