Description

Eliana Glass brings delicate New York songcraft to LantarenVenster

Eliana Glass comes to LantarenVenster on Friday 20 November 2026 with music that feels small, sharp and quietly luminous. Her songs catch the details of everyday life, like light moving across a ceiling, and turn them into intimate pieces built around voice, piano and poetic restraint.

Glass is a singer, pianist and visual artist based in New York. Her voice is soft and melancholic, while her clear piano playing gives the songs a sense of focus and nerve. Her work often feels bittersweet, with minimal compositions that leave plenty of room for feeling, silence and detail.

Her debut album E, released in 2025 on Shelter Press, forms the starting point for a journey through her own musical universe. It is music for listeners who like late-night melancholy, quiet tension and songwriting that does not shout to be heard.

Fans of Joni Mitchell, Aldous Harding, Beth Gibbons and Joan As Police Woman may want to pay attention. This is one for the gentle souls, the piano lovers and the people who know that sad songs can be rather beautiful. □□
